Tim & Nicole Wilcox, YWAM – Baltimore

It's been a year since the beginning of pandemic lock-downs, limitations, and losses. We pray you are carried by compassion for yourself in the difficulties and grief you've experienced, and for the challenges and losses others have also faced as we continue in these strange times together.

We've been gathering in our friend's living room socially distanced or with masks on, or sometimes via Zoom. We open our workbooks, "Healing the Wounds of Trauma." We read a story of someone experiencing trauma, loss, grief, or healing. Sharing personal stories, we explore ways we have experienced these things in our lives, and we study scriptures that help us understand God in light of suffering. "Healing the Wounds of Trauma" is a program developed in war-torn countries for people to begin to meet God in their trauma and make a step towards wholeness and healing. The program was adapted for an American cities context and collaboratively put together for Baltimore by Somebody Cares Baltimore.

We hosted some of our friends from Madison on outreach last October. Two of our Madison-based co-workers led a DTS (Discipleship Training School) outreach on the east coast and spent three days with us. They helped us get our boutique sorted and served our friends on the street during our Bloom ministry. Chloe & I joined the team serving the Transformation Center ministry on the city's Southside. We have two more teams scheduled to serve with us in Winter/Spring 2021.

This winter we welcomed another staff family to Baltimore. This family also participated with Tim in the Introduction to Spiritual Formation and Discipleship course last year. It's a gift to be in a new city and welcoming familiar faces. This spring we also have a Baltimore-native joining staff with a heart for intercession for the city. We are excited about all the things God is up to, even amidst this pandemic.

After moving across the country and becoming a family of four, we are finally feeling more like ourselves. It has been a meaningful season of bonding as a family, setting our new family rhythm, and discovering more about Chloe & Luca along the way. We are grateful for our neighbors and staff team that we continue to get to know and enjoy during this time. Thank you for your continued prayers and notes during our time of transition! We expect the first two years to be crucial in our transition, especially with the limitations of the pandemic, and hold on to the Lord's grace to root us in our community, city, and ministry.

With all our love,
Tim, Nicole, Chloe & Luca
